

Estonian Archaeology 3

VALTER LANG

THE BRONZE AND EARLY
IRON AGES IN ESTONIA

Tartu University Press
Humaniora: archaeologica

Contents

Introduction

European background	11
Chronology of the Bronze and Early Iron Ages in Estonia	14
About the book in general	15
Acknowledgements	17

Chapter 1. Prerequisites for the Development of an Agrarian Society: the Early Bronze Age

1.1. Settlement and economy	19
1.1.1. Settlement sites	19
1.1.2. Late stone axes	24
1.1.3. Pollen diagrams	31
1.1.4. The first landnam	33
1.2. Society and culture	36
1.2.1. 'Epineolithic culturelessness'	36
1.2.2. Exchange of prestige items	38
The earliest metal artefacts	38
The social context of imported items	41
1.3. Centre – periphery relations	44
1.4. Conclusion	47

Chapter 2. Settlement Sites and Settlement in the Late Bronze and Early Iron Ages

2.1. Open settlement sites	49
2.2. Enclosed settlement sites	55
2.2.1. Fortified settlements	57
Iru	57

Asva	60
Ridala	63
Joaorg at Narva	66
Fortified settlements and their context	67
2.2.2. Hilltop settlements	71
2.2.3. Early ring forts	74
Kaali	75
Võhma and Pidula	77
Massu, Päälda, and Lipa	78
2.2.4. Early promontory hill forts	81
2.3. Developmental trends in settlement throughout Estonia	83
2.3.1. North-western Estonia	83
2.3.2. North-eastern Estonia	85
2.3.3. Central Estonia	86
2.3.4. South-eastern Estonia	87
2.3.5. South-western Estonia	89
2.3.6. The islands and western Estonia	90
2.4. Conclusion	93

Chapter 3. Agriculture and Handicraft in the Late Bronze and Early Iron Ages

3.1. Land cultivation and cattle rearing	95
3.1.1. Land use systems	96
Clearance cairn fields	96
Block-shaped fields	98
Baltic fields	98
Celtic fields	103
3.1.2. Agricultural tools	105
Ards	105

Sickles	108
Grinding stones	109
3.1.3. Cattle rearing and grain growing	110
3.1.4. Land use systems and society	113
3.2. Metal work	115
3.2.1. Bronze work	115
Tha start of local bronze production	115
The bronze trade network in the Late Bronze Age	117
Bronze work in the Pre-Roman and Roman Iron Ages	120
3.2.2. Iron work	120
The first iron items	121
The first iron-smelting sites and the development of local products	122
Iron and the society	124
3.3. Ceramics	125
3.3.1. Pottery making	125
3.3.2. Styles of pottery	127
3.4. Other forms of handicraft	136
3.4.1. Textiles	136
Cloth making based on Textile Ceramics	136
Tools used for cloth making	137
3.4.2. Woodworking	139
3.4.3. Bone working	143
3.5. Conclusion	145

Chapter 4. Graves and Burial Customs in the Late Bronze and Early Iron Ages

4.1. Stone-cist graves	147
4.1.1 Distribution of stone-cist graves	147
4.1.2. Structure of stone-cist graves	149
Circular walls	149

Cist	151
The area between the cist and the circular wall	152
4.1.3. Burial in stone-cist graves	153
4.1.4. Grave goods	155
Ornaments	155
Tools and everyday items	159
Weapons	160
Stone items	160
Ceramics	160
4.1.5. The age and origin of the stone-cist graves	161
4.2. Ship graves	164
4.3. Cairn graves	166
4.3.1. Cairn graves without circular walls	166
4.3.2. Cairn graves with circular walls	167
4.3.3. The age, distribution, and origin of cairn graves	168
4.4. Early tarand -graves	170
4.4.1. Kurevere-type graves	170
4.4.2. Kõmsi-type graves	172
4.4.3. Poanse-type graves	174
4.4.4. Early single- tarand -graves	177
4.4.5. Burials in early tarand -graves	178
Inhumations	178
Cremations	180
4.4.6. Grave goods	180
Ornaments	181
Tools and everyday items	186
Weapons	187
Ceramics	187
4.4.7. The age and origin of the early tarand -graves	188
4.5. Typical tarand -graves	191

4.5.1. North-eastern Estonia	192
4.5.2. North-western Estonia	194
4.5.3. Central Estonia	196
4.5.4. South-eastern Estonia	198
4.5.5. South-western Estonia	201
4.5.6. Western Estonia and the islands	202
4.5.7. Typical tarand -graves: conclusion	203
4.6. Single- tarand -graves	204
4.7. Grave goods from typical and single- tarand -graves	206
Fibulae	206
Decorative pins	210
Neck-rings	211
Bracelets	212
Finger-rings	213
Tools, parts of belts and weapons	214
Ceramics	216
4.8. Bauta -stone graves	216
4.9. Pit graves	217
4.10. Conclusion	218

Chapter 5. People, Society, and Culture in the Late Bronze and Early Iron Ages

5.1. People and society based on settlement and grave finds	221
5.1.1. Individual	221
5.1.2. Community	223
5.1.3. Social structure of the settlement pattern	225
5.2. Society and culture	229
5.2.1. Ceramic styles	230
5.2.2. Ornament styles	232
5.2.3. Style groups and social groups	235

Society and religion	239
3.1. Sites associated with religion	239
Stone graves and their surroundings	239
Cup-marked stones	242
Enclosed cult sites	246
Hoards	246
3.2. Main features of religion	249
Trade and cultural contacts	251
4.1. Vehicles	251
4.2. The direction and nature of contacts	252
Late Bronze Age	253
Pre-Roman Iron Age	255
Roman Iron Age	256
4.3. Trade and society	258
Centre – periphery relations: structural changes in the society	260
5.1. Late Bronze Age	260
5.2. Pre-Roman Iron Age	262
5.3. Roman Iron Age	263
Conclusion	265
Appendix	267
References	269
Manuscripts	269
Published sources	269
Abbreviations	269
Index of Archaeological Sites	291